II.—RULES FOR THE PAYMENT BY THE GOVERNMENT OF CONTINGENTS AND TRAVELLING ALLOWANCES TO JUDICIAL OFFICERS OF THE MADRAS PRESIDENCY OUTSIDE THE PRESIDENCY TOWN

Under section 514 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the Governor in Council, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council is pleased to make the following revised rules for regulating the payment, on the part of Government, of the expenses of witnesses (including completely attending judicial courts in the Madras Presidency other than those of the City of Madras):—

1. The judicial courts are authorized to pay, at the rates specified in rule 4, the expenses of emoluments and witnesses in cases in which the prosecution is conducted according as by, or under the orders, or with the sanction of the Government, or of any Judge, Magistrate, or other public officer, or when it shall appear to the Judge or Magistrate presiding over such court to be directly in furtherance of the interests of public justice; and in cases referred to in article II appended to the Code of Criminal Procedure as not being; and in all cases in which the witnesses are compelled to attend by a Magistrate under the provisions of chapter XLVI of the Code.

2. (1) For the purpose of these rules witnesses are divided into two classes, namely, officials and non-officials. Official witnesses, that is to say, public servants in whom the Civil Service Regulations are applicable are considered to give evidence as officials, are entitled to receive for their journey to and from the court and for the days spent by them in attendance on the court to give evidence in any case under rule 1, travelling allowances at the rate prescribed by the Civil Service Regulations for the time being in force. The court shall not, however, make any payment to official witnesses in such cases, but shall grant them receipts for money that they appeared to give evidence of what had come to their knowledge or of matters with which they had to deal, in their official capacity, the date on which they appeared and the period for which they are detained, so as to enable them to draw travelling allowance and fees under article 113 of the Civil Service Regulations.

(2) When a public servant appears in his official capacity as a witness in other cases (e.g., in cases in which section 214 (2) or 217, Code of Criminal Procedure, is applied), or when a public servant appears to give evidence in any case as a private person, testifies a witness and bats may be paid to him in the ordinary manner, but the court shall send an order of all such payments made to him to the head of the office in which he is employed. In that office the amount paid to him and the period during which the attendance of the witness in his official capacity as a witness in a case concerned with him shall be noted under the supervision of the Clerk of Works, the Judge or Magistrate before whom the trial takes place will furnish every official with a certificate showing the days on which he attended to give evidence and the amount of bats and travelling allowance paid to him on that account.

No. 28.—The following resolution of the Government of India is republished:—

FINANCE DEPARTMENT

No. 202 K.A.

Dated, the 18th July 1917.

Explanatory.—In the exercise of the financial powers of the Government of India in the Finance Department, No. 202 K.A., dated the 21st July 1916, revised rules were issued defining the financial powers to be exercised by Local Governments with which provincial authorities had been made. These rules were intended to be complete in themselves as regards all matters falling within their scope, but they issued only as a part of a comprehensive scheme of delegation which has been regarding the authority of the Government of India under the Government of India (Delegation of Powers) Act, 1915. The object of the Secretary of State has been to place in all the financial powers of the scheme and the Government of India under to replace the general principles on which it is based.

1. The classes of expenditure in respect of which financial powers are exercisable may be divided broadly into two main categories:—

(a) Expenditure which is regulated by the provisions of the principal authorized rules, namely, the Civil Service Regulations, the Civil Accounts Code, and the Public Works Department Code.

It will be convenient to refer to the decentralization of financial powers in regard to such expenditure under the description "rule delegations."

(b) Expenditure coming under the classes mentioned in the Audit Regulation of 11th March 1913 as amended, from time to time with the approval of the Secretary of State.

The latter expenditure was generally regulated by the provisions of the rules above mentioned, though, in the absence of a separate body of rules defining the powers in such matters possessed by the various authorities subordinate to the Government of India, the existence of some of the existing rules in the subject has, as a matter of convenience, been incorporated in one or other of the codes mentioned in clause (a) above. Delegations in regard to such expenditure will be referred to as "expenditure delegations." The main items of policy being under this category are as follows:—

(i) Expenditure directly connected with the creation of new appointments and the filling of the vacancies of existing appointments.

(ii) Contingent charges, that is, those referred to in Chapter 6 of the Civil Accounts Code, Volume I.

(3) Other classes of expenditure which are not included under classes (i) and (ii) above and are also not regulated by the provisions of the principal authorized rules, viz. grants to educational institutions, public pensions, etc.

Expenditure delegations.

2. The rules which will in future regulate the financial powers of the various authorities have been framed in accordance with certain underlying principles which it seems desirable to explain. First in order come the powers of Provincial Governments (by which term is meant local Governments with whom a regular, or quasi-provincial, financial settlement has been made), as regards expenditure under provincial and divided funds. An examination of the rules dealing with such expenditure will show that, subject to the limitations imposed, the Provincial Governments now exercise the same financial powers as the Government of India. The administrative control of the various Government concerns regulated and the local Government is required to obey all general or specific instructions issued by superior authority, while in several matters the delegations powers may be exercised in accordance with the rules in the financial codes. But the rules are so framed that, when any case of doubt arises, the presumption will be that the Provincial Government possesses power to dispose finally of the case, unless it can be shown that it is excluded by one or other of the limitations mentioned.

3. The rules defining the powers of a Provincial Government relating to expenditure are framed on a different basis. As regards such expenditure the Provincial Government does not occupy the same independent and responsible position as it does with regard to the revenues placed under its control, but rather that of an agent of the Government of India. The rules in the case define precisely and the limits of the powers conferred, but the powers themselves. The presumption therefore will be, when doubt arises as to an item of proposed expenditure, that power to sanction it does not exist unless it has been expressly authorized. The same principle has been adhered to in framing the rules which will be separately issued defining the powers of Minor Local Governments, with whom no provincial settlement has been made, and of Departments of the Government of India.

4. A group of authorities, sometimes loosely referred to as "Head of Departments," and persons in administration. It includes all authorities subordinate to a Provincial Government, to a Minor Local Government, or to a Department of the Government of India in whose power is vested the financial powers, who are subordinate to Provincial Governments. In their case it has proved impracticable to draw up a set of rules which would define accurately the powers they were permitted to exercise. Amongst them there is to be found a wide range of duties and responsibilities, many of them of a technical nature, and the result would be a collection of rules, many of which would be of a technical nature, and the result would be a collection of rules, many of which would be of a technical nature. It would still be necessary to refer to the Government of India and the Secretary of State whenever any enhancement of the delegated powers became desirable. The Government of India have therefore obtained the approval of the Secretary of State is an act of fundamental nature (in any of which mentioned to the fundamental principle) and the actual powers to be exercised in such cases, but the numerous powers to which powers may be delegated without reference to the Secretary of State, such as management, while they leave the department wholly unaffected, will not interfere with the Secretary of State's general control, for it will be a matter entirely for him to decide in the last instance whether a particular kind of power is suitable for delegation and to fix limits which cannot be exceeded without his previous sanction. At the same time the Government of India, on the Provincial Government, at the same time, will have full authority to decide whether the various powers which may be delegated to any particular group of authorities shall in practice be delegated in any individual case to a particular group. The power of re-appointment vested in Provincial Governments by these rules is substantial, but it will be understood that their prerogative in the way of power the general administrative control of the Government of India who retain unimpaired the right to have directions to Provincial Governments as to the exercise of the powers conferred by the fundamental rules.

4. It is not the intention of the Government of India to incorporate by the present Resolution any sweeping change of policy. Power has not been delegated to the past without due regard to the consideration of the particular office or department concerned. The same principle will be followed in future, and the general power of re-appointment which the fundamental rules confer must be exercised in a discretionary and by a single general system, but on a special consideration in each case of the various powers of the particular department on behalf of which the delegated powers are exercised, and only when some real administrative advantage is obtained thereby. The nature of delegation might therefore be such as to include such supplementary restrictions as practical necessities, or the nature of the case might demand.

5. It will not be necessary to discuss each of the rules in detail, but regarding one or two of them some explanation is desirable—

(a) With effect from the date of this Resolution all existing delegations of financial power to subordinate provincial authorities which are not covered by the first fundamental rule will give rise must be to general powers in so far as they fall within the terms of the fundamental rules. There are, for example, cases in which subordinate authorities at present exercise the full power of Provincial Governments as regards the grant of certain classes of establishments. The delegated powers will, for the future, remain effective within the limits and subject to the conditions mentioned in rule 2, but beyond that will be absorbed, unless the original delegation can be traced back to the sanction of the Secretary of State himself or is otherwise specifically secured by the provisions of rule 1.

(b) The powers which may be delegated to the creation of permanent and temporary establishments are defined in rules 2 and 3. The Government of India are at present that a subordinate authority in which powers may be delegated under these rules should satisfy, if any, as authorized to make appointments in his own office and they trust that Provincial Governments will bear this in mind.

6. In several provinces allotments are placed annually at the disposal of Commissioners from which they make out-coming grants towards works of public improvement and for general purposes of a public nature within their territories. The Government of India have in recent years restricted powers to these general local Commissioners that District Officers also should exercise annual grants under the terms of Commissions. It is of course within the ordinary power of a local Government to make a budget grant at the disposal of a particular officer, and under rule 2 it will be open to them to delegate to District Officers and to other subordinate authorities a limited power of sanctioning expenditure from such grants. There is, however, an important distinction between the powers exercised by Commissioners and those which may be delegated to other authorities under rule 2. The power of a Commissioner is a general expenditure from his discretionary grant is not subject to the limits imposed by rule 2 and it has been excluded with the approval of the Secretary of State and as to the nature of expenditure mentioned. It follows that unless the expenditure (1) is to be provided under the ordinary course of the administration, or (2) beyond the powers of the local Government or authority is by intention it has been, the exercise given by the Government must be challenged in rule. The phrase commonly used to define the powers of a Commissioner is "a discretion as to the nature of a request and general character, e.g., 'objects deserving of assistance from the public funds,' or 'objects which may suitably be recognized by a local money grant.' The discretion implied in these phrases may suitably be restricted by reference to the high standard and consistency of Commissioners of Districts. But the Government of India do not wish to do this; it is possible that other powers should be entrusted to officers of a lower standing. If under rule 2 a local Government were to delegate like extensive powers to District Officers or other would be open to objection in view of what has been said in paragraph 5 above, and it would amount to delegation by a single Commissioner and general nature. It was a subject which very rarely to the discretion of the whole powers of the local Government.

7. At the same time the Government of India do not desire to nullify the effect of rule 2 in the case of District Officers by a general prohibition. As already stated, it will be open to local Governments to give the powers of an existing expenditure to District Officers under that rule. But where such powers are delegated, it is essential that the objects on which the allotment may be expended should be clearly and properly defined in the order of delegation. The order should specify, for instance, the work of public improvement or the allotment of public assistance on which money may be spent or, to take another example, the kinds of works which are suitably to be executed by monetary means. Provided the nature of the expenditure which may be incurred is clearly indicated in the order of the local Government, so that the whole officer may see at once whether any particular system is or is not intended by the terms, the Government of India have no objection to the giving of annual grants at the disposal of District Officers. They trust that what has been said above will be borne in mind by local Governments when they exercise their powers under rule 2.

Only delegations.

20. The various orders dealt with in part a variety of circumstances involving exceptions that the question of the delegation of the powers conferred thereby cannot be treated with anything like the same generality. Ordinarily it has been found necessary to reserve the permissible power of delegation separately for each article of a rule under which the question of delegated administration can arise. In pursuance of this policy the Governments of India have obtained the approval of the Secretary of State to a large number of amendments to the Civil Service Regulations and to a similar number in the Civil Accounts Code and the Public Works Department Code, providing for the delegation of powers. It will be convenient to explain the principles which underlie these related delegations, the case of the Civil Service Regulations being quoted by way of illustration. Under that code, as it stood before the issue of the amendments dated the 14th August 1905, it will be found that none of the articles which gave rise to a question of delegation were expressed in a form which conferred certain authority on the "local Government." In short words, powers had already been delegated from the Government of India to the local Government, so to say the better term, to the military, naval, and Appendix I to the Civil Service Regulations also contain a list of authorities who are entitled to exercise the powers of a local Government for the purposes of the Civil Service Regulations or certain named portions of it. By this means a considerable further measure of delegation had already been authorized on the article in the appendix includes not only "Provincial Governments" and "Minor Local Governments" as above defined, but numerous kinds of departments.

21. The amendments which have now been made in the Civil Service Regulations in many cases take the form that a local Government may delegate its powers either fully or in some defined extent to "Heads of Departments," and a clause has been inserted in Article 154, empowering the Government of India to delegate the powers of a Head of Department to any authority. Code delegations in the past have been arranged with little regard to system and uniformity, the extent of the powers obtained being often mainly dependent on the activity of a particular subordinate authority or local Government in requesting for higher powers. Under the new system, much of this partly haphazard differentiation is eliminated, while scope is allowed for such variety of treatment as is really required by local differences.

22. The principles underlying the scheme may be summarized as follows:—

(a) The general right of deciding what kinds of powers are to be exercisable suitable for delegation is reserved to the Secretary of State, inasmuch as no rule authorizing further delegation can be introduced under any article in the Civil Service Regulations without his previous sanction.

(b) The general right of deciding what authorities are to be authorized to exercise such powers is delegated, so far as is necessary to the Government of India, with whom will rest the power of adding to the list of "Heads of Departments" for the purposes of the Civil Service Regulations.

(c) The right of deciding whether a particular power capable of delegation under clause (a) shall or shall not be delegated to a particular authority capable under clause (b) shall be reserved entirely to the local Government. That is, it will be optional for the local Government in any particular case to delegate or not to delegate. If the local Government does delegate a given power, it can exclude it or all or any of the kinds of Departments to whom it is, and can extend the exercise of the power by such authorities to such conditions as it may choose to impose; and it can afterwards revoke or modify such conditions as experience may show to be desirable.

23. By the Resolution of the Government of India No. 3315-III., dated the 17th November 1905, the power to decide what offices were to be deemed Heads of Departments for the purposes of the order was delegated to local Governments subject to certain limitations. It will be seen that under the new system this power has been reserved by the original Government. The numerous additions which have been made to the list of powers which may be delegated to Heads of Departments rendered it desirable to secure a stricter control over the selection of the authorities who may exercise these powers, and the necessity of placing the delegation question on some definite and intelligible basis also suggested the advisability of a provision to the precise meaning before that. Where members of a staff in the Civil Service Regulations provide for the delegation of powers to Heads of Departments, local Governments may at once authorize the delegation of powers so far as officers who are already defined or by Heads of Departments under Appendix I to the Civil Service Regulations, are concerned. The sanction of the Government of India is, however, required in addition to the list of Heads of Departments given in the Appendix referred to, either for the purpose of the Regulations generally or of special articles, and proposals to this end should be submitted to them for sanction. Officers not named in Appendix No. I & A, who have been included by local Governments in the Heads of Departments under the Resolution in this Department No. 3315-III., dated the 17th November 1905, may continue to exercise such powers as have already been delegated to them, but the extension to them of the larger powers that can now be delegated to Heads of Departments requires the sanction of the Government of India.
